DOUGLAS:

Silver, a human heart gules, ensigned with an imperial crown of gold, on a chief azure three molets argent.

FOREWORD

"To forget ones ancestors is to be a brook without a source, a tree without a root." This Chinese proverb explains the purpose of this book. It has been my desire to collect and preserve for future generations of the Douglas family a history of their ancestors.

In compiling such a book, it has taken many hours of work. It is hoped that every member of the family will find this book interesting as well as informative about the Douglas family. Through the transmission of names and dates, there will undoubtedly be a few misspelled names or incorrect dates. I deeply regret this and issue my apology as it is nearly impossible to handle such a large family without a few mistakes of this manner.

The Douglas family has a glorious past. It is my hope that this book will promote a deeper feeling of unity within our family. As Lord Macaulay stated: "A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendents."

FAMILY IN SCOTLAND

The name - "DOUGLAS" - is as old as Scotland. The family name is Gaelic and translated means: (dubh) "black" (glas) "water." This came from the settling of the family on a lake and stream referred to as "black water."

William de Duglas was the first of family to be recorded. His name appears between the years of 1175 and 1199. He witnessed many charters of Scotland in this period.

The histories of the Douglasses is closely connected with the history of Scotland. There are three principal lines of the family. They are: 1) the old Douglas of Douglasdale referred to as "The Black Douglas." He was illustrious in the War of Independence. 2) the Morton branch who were so closely concerned with the fortunes of Mary Queen of Scots. 3) the Angus or "The Red Douglas." From these principal stems arose the family of Douglasses.

In 1357, Sir William of Douglas was made Earl of Douglas. It was the same William who, in 1370, disputed the succession of the Scottish throne.

The most interesting story is that of Sir James Douglas. Sir James Douglas was summoned by King Robert Bruce of Scotland. Sir James was told to take the heart of Bruce when he died to the Holy Sepulchre. Upon the death of King Bruce in 1329, Sir James carried out this order. From this experience the Douglas crest was formed. There are three silver stars on a blue chief, the heart of Bruce, and later the heart was royally crowned by the Imperial Crown.

The Douglas family has held every rank of peerage from Baron to Duke. Douglasses have married into the royal house many times. A complete history of the Douglas Family in Scotland would be practically the history of Scotland itself.

DOUGLAS FAMILY IN AMERICA

The Douglas family first appears in America in the early 1700's. They landed from Scotland in Pennsylvania. From there, the family separated, moving to several states--North Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia.

Our records begin with Alexander Douglas who is found in North Carolina as early as 1740. There is very little information on his early life. In 1799, he is found in the records of Kingston Office as paying for land. He owned land in the eastern part of Surry County, North Carolina. Alexander Douglas was a revolutionary soldier. Records give his pay as a captain and later as a major. After the war, he remained in North Carolina. He died in 1800, leaving his estate to his children. There is no information on his wife.

William Douglas, born 1776, was a son of William Douglas. He was probably the eldest of the children. He owned land and lived in the western part of Surry County, near the Wilkes County line. In the marriage bonds of Wilkes County, the following is given:

William Douglas to Elizabeth Hanks, 9 March 1824;
security, James Martin.

Several children were born to this family, one of which was John Stanley Douglas.

William Douglas was a member of the House of Commons of North Carolina. He served at the General Assembly held in Raleigh on November 19, 1827. William Douglas and Ephraim Hough were the members from Surry County.

From these families came John Stanley Douglas, the beginning of our line.

John Stanley Douglas was born in Surry County, North Carolina on September 22, 1826. His parents, William Douglas and Elizabeth Hanks Douglas were humble people struggling to rise in the constant growth of our young nation.

He married the daughter of a family that had resided for many years in North Carolina. He and Elizabeth Norman were wed in Wilkesboro, Wilkes County, North Carolina, on February 10, 1849. To their union were born five children.

Their happy existence was interrupted by the secession of the southern states and the subsequent Civil War. John Stanley Douglas volunteered for service in the Infantry of the Confederate States of America in Jackson County, Alabama, on September 6, 1862. He held the rank of private in the 13th Regiment, Alabama Battalion Infantry. His battalion saw action at South Mountain (Boonsboro) in Maryland eight days later. The battalion engaged in a very active campaign for the next several months. He served under the famous Brigadier General James. J. Archer. He saw action with Archer at Chancellorsville and participated in the capture of Hazel Grove. They were subsequently captured in July, 1863, in the early hours in the battle of Gettysburg. After the conclusion of the hostilities, he was freed and subscribed to the Oath of Allegiance at Nashville, Tennessee on May 5, 1865.

He immediately set out on his long journey home and with plans for rebuilding the lives of his family. His plans were shattered when he learned of the death of his wife, Elizabeth, during his absence.

With his five children, he moved to Tennessee. There he met and married Elizabeth Morris. Though she was quite a bit younger than he, she brought a new inspiration to lead him onward. They at once set out by wagon train for the new country of the Mississippi.

One can actually feel the penetrating hardships that were encountered as they headed into a new land, leaving their friends and relatives behind. After a difficult journey, they finally arrived at San Augustine, Texas, where they settled for one year. Here they engaged in farming. Then came the impulse to move farther into Texas. Moving into a sparsely populated region, they moved to Center Mills, Texas, where they farmed for four years. Then they moved to Hood County, where they began a mercantile business. In Hood County, they moved from several small settlements--Lipan, Balch, and Thorp Spring. They constantly sought to help others. In Thorp Spring, they finally settled to remain for many years.

Again the hardships were many. Goods had to be freighted from Fort Worth to this small settlement. The transportation of these goods was dangerous as well as expensive.

Their children grew up in Thorp Spring. The efforts of the parents had been well spent in finding the right place to settle.

John Stanley Douglas died on February 9, 1885. He had taken a trip to Fort Worth to conduct business and there contracted pneumonia. His monument still stands in a quite, little, and somewhat deserted cemetery as a reminder of his efforts in the face of adversity. Only those whose names are written on the tablets in this cemetery could devulge the life of this humble, loveable, and steadfast man.

Elizabeth Norman and John Stanley Douglas were united in Holy Bonds of Matrimony on the 10th day of Feb. in the year of our Lord 1849.

Elizabeth Norman was born September 3, 1830. Deceased this life on September the 16th, 1864 at the age of 34 years.

John Stanley Douglas was born September 22, 1826. Deceased this life on February the 9th, 1885 at the age of 59 years.

Children of John Stanley Douglas and Elizabeth Norman are as follows, as taken from the Family Bible:

Mary F. Douglas was born December 7, 1849.

Aaron Burr Douglas was born March 10, 1852.

F. P. Douglas was born August 22, 1855.

James B. Douglas was born February 27, 1857.

William T. Douglas was born April 5, 1859.

Margaret E. Douglas was born August 17, 1861.

George M. Douglas was born December 7, 1848.

All the children of John Douglas and Elizabeth Norman are deceased.

Elizabeth Morris, age 17, and John Stanley Douglas, age 40, were united in Holy Bonds of Matrimony on the 11th day of April in the year of our Lord, 1866, as appears on record in the Marriage Book 1938-1975, page 278 this 14th day of April, 1953.

Attest

C. O. Prince
County Clerk

(This is a copy of the marriage certificate of Franklin County, Winchester, Tennessee sent in 1953.)

Elizabeth Morris was born March 24, 1849 at Cowan, Tennessee. Deceased this life on April 24, 1949. Age 100 years.

John Stanley Douglas was born September 22, 1826 in Wilkes County, North Carolina. Deceased this life on February 9, 1885. Age 59 years.

Children of John Stanley and Elizabeth Morris, as taken from the Family Bible, appears as follows:

Cora Lee Douglas was born November 20, 1867 at San Augustine, Texas. Deceased this life on November 3, 1902. Age 35 years.

Martha Douglas was born July 28, 1869 at Center Mills, Texas. Deceased this life on March 18, 1913. Age 44 years.

Stephen A. Douglas was born September 11, 1871 at Center Mills, Texas.

Alexander Douglas was born May 19, 1873 at Lipan, Texas.

Fanny Bell Douglas was born October 6, 1875 at Balch, Texas. Deceased this life in December, 1930. Age 55 years.

John Stanley Douglas, II, was born July 19, 1877 at Balch, Texas. Deceased this life on November 4, 1953. Age 76 years.

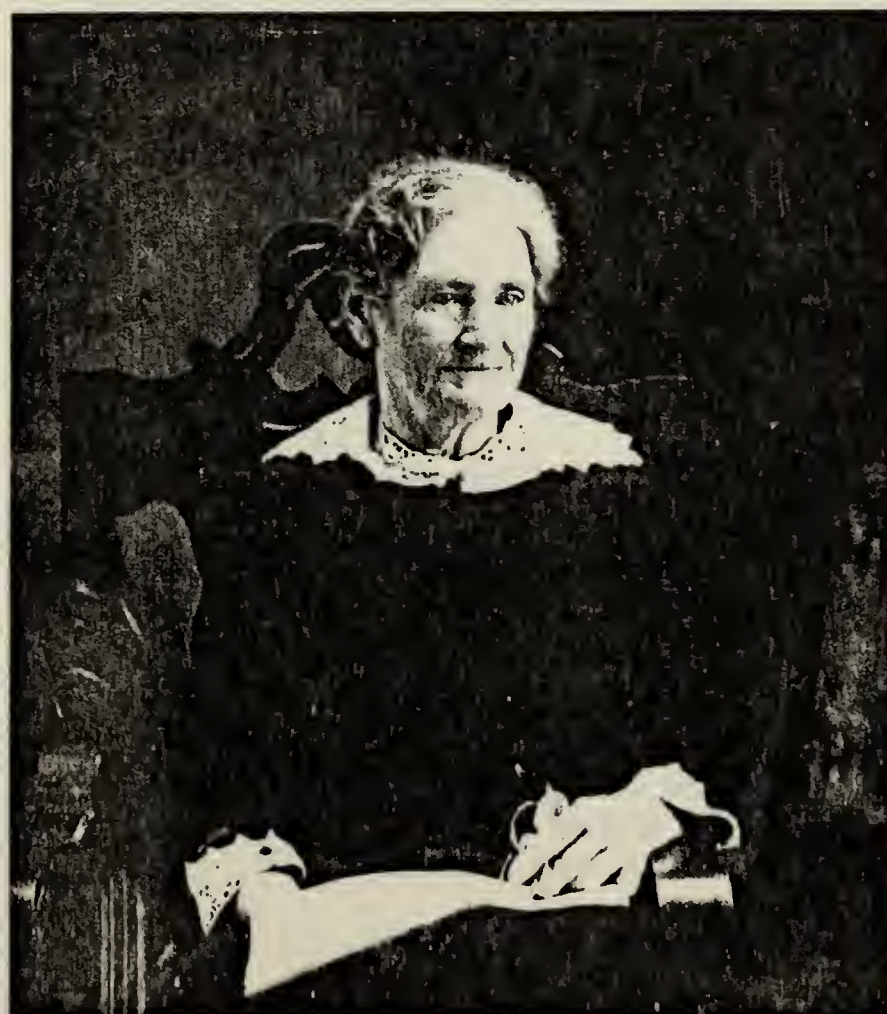

Mary Virginia Douglas was born February 15, 1882 at Thorp Spring Texas.

ELIZABETH MORRIS was born at Cowan, Tennessee, on March 24, 1849. Her family was among the early settlers of that State. Her parents, Larkin Morris and Diana Logan Morris, were born in Tennessee also. Her grandmother was a native of Ireland, having been brought to America when she was a small child.

Elizabeth Morris grew up in Tennessee and was just a young girl when the Civil War began. She endured the destruction and hardships of that period. She married John Stanley Douglas in 1866 and in the same year moved to Texas. It was a hard life, and yet she had the will and stamina to defeat the trials that came her way. She had the care of the five children of her husband's first wife and with the care of her own it was no small task afforded her.

In 1885, John Stanley Douglas died, leaving her with seven children to raise. Elizabeth Douglas disposed of the business and bought a farm in Hood County, Texas. From here she moved to Parker County, Texas, where she purchased more land. After all the children were married, she sold her land and made her home with her youngest daughter.

Elizabeth Douglas lived to be 100 years old. After she was already in her nineties, she did extensive traveling by herself. She died on April 24, 1949, after a long life in which she saw many hardships come and pass. Through this woman, we can see the true pioneer. In her life, she witnessed a panorama of history--living through four wars our country engaged, fighting the Indians, and being a settler in a new state. Elizabeth Douglas had a very active, useful, and beautiful life.

CORA LEE DOUGLAS, eldest child of John Stanley Douglas and Elizabeth Morris Douglas, was born November 20, 1867, at San Augustine, Texas. When she was a small child, her family moved on west where she spent her life. The country was sparsely settled and Indian raids were frequent. She attended country schools and studied at the Commercial College in Thorp Spring, Texas. Deceased November 3, 1902.

Fanny Bell Douglas

JOHN STANLEY DOUGLAS, II, was born July 19, 1877, at Balch, Texas. He grew up on farms in Hood and Parker counties, Texas. He remained and worked with his mother after all but one of the children had married. He then married and moved to Oklahoma, where he lived and farmed for several years. From Oklahoma, he moved to California. He was a devoted father to his children. His wit and humor made him friends that would be counted by the score. Deceased November 4, 1953.

P

MARY VIRGINIA DOUGLAS was born February 15, 1882, at Thorp Spring, Texas. In Thorp Spring, she attended the Add-Ran College. Following school, she married and spent her time in housekeeping. In 1920, she ventured into work for the United States Government. She served the government for 30 years as a postmistress. She found her work pleasant and the responsibility of the work gave her an inspiration to go forward and establish a record that would stand out in her community. Especially did she realize and cherish the goodness of the people in Dodson, Texas--her home.
